

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The mobile device for powering, recharging and/or controlling a height-fixed electric appliance includes a first connection structure which can co-operate with a second connection structure, belonging to an electrically-operating appliance. The first connection structure is disposed at the end of a stick or similar element, housing a linking means which connects the first connection structure to the control device, disposed at the other end of the stick or similar element.